HICKMAN, FULTON COUNTY, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, JUNE 20, 1879.

Address.
 On the life and death of Dr. J. M. Alexander, of Jordan Station, who died of Yellow Fever, contracted at Hickman while visiting the services to the sufferers during the epidemic of the summer of 1873. Written to be delivered before the S. W. Ky. Medical Association, by me, J. M. Alexander, one of the committee appointed to prepare a memorial address to the dead Hickman Physician.

Some question was raised after the 25th of April, 1874, as to the indefiniteness of Mr. Alexander's statement relative to the month of his admission, and on the 27th day of May he wrote signed and made oath to the following statement:

"MORRISTOWN, KY., May 27th 1874.—I, Cyrus Alley, state that Thomas F. Hargis was sworn in to practice law in the County of Fulton, Kentucky, on the 25th day of May, 1874, and on the 27th day of May he wrote signed and made oath to the following statement:

THE TOAST.

MAINTAIN THE TOAST.
 Sparkled the gay champagne;
 By the light of the day that was dying
 He filled up their goblets with wine.
 "Let the last best toast be 'Woman—
 Woman, dear woman!'" said he:
 "Empty your glasses, my darlings,
 When you drink to your sex with me!"

But she caught his strong brown fingers,
 And held him tight as in a fear,
 And through the gathering twilight
 Her voice fell on his ear.
 "Nay, are you drunk, I implore you,
 By all that you hold divine,
 Pledge a woman in two days
 Before you drink to your sex with me!"

"What has wine brought to woman?
 Nothing but tears and woe,
 It has torn from her heart her love,
 And proven her prayers in vain;
 And her husband's golden, all-accursed,
 Lie tangled up in wine.
 Oh! I pledge, pledge no woman
 In the course of no many—wine!"

 Reports from Kansas and Southern Idaho are to the effect that the wheat is heading out in some places on a B or eight inch stalk, promising a miserable yield.

The steamship between New York and Europe are crowded every trip. They are turning away passengers, so unusual is the summer travel toward Europe.
 W. H. Vanderbilt's income is as much money as some of us receive in a whole day.—[Syracuse (N. Y.) Courier.]

A newspaper correspondent, having completed a tour of 27,000 miles in eight months, and being somewhat fatigued, was advised by a London physician to try change.

The Memphis Appeal says that the southern press was never so thoroughly united as it is in its determination to sustain officials in enforcing the law against carrying concealed weapons.
 In pork packing during the past year, the net or dressed weight of hogs was thus divided: Four-sixths meat, one sixth lard, one sixth skin and curing and rendering.

Georgia exempts from taxation, for the manufacture of cotton, whether in buildings for mill purposes, machinery, or land purchased for the uses of the manufacturer.
 Probably Thomas A. Scott receives the largest salary of any man in this country. He is now president of seven railroads, under the management of the Pennsylvania Central, which pay him about $100,000 a year.

Queen Victoria appears wearing bangles. Sensible Vis, if she succeeds in stopping this crazy outrage on the hair as speedily as she conquered the Zulul, she will confer a great blessing on mankind generally.
 Cease your croaking about hard times and nothing to do. "Where there is a will there is a way." The trouble with most people is, they have no will, while ways of usefulness are opened up to them on every hand.

The average salary of Methodist ministers in fourteen Southern conferences is said to be $572, and the average amount paid for the support of the same is $850,000. Or, in other words, the average is $700 and the deficiency in payments about twelve per cent.

Texas planters seem to think the negro exodus will greatly raise the price of cotton, and with this impression upon them have planted largely in cotton. In some instances large fields of cotton have been plowed up and put down in cotton.

"A hairpin," says the Birmingham "Republican," "is a useful article to a woman." It serves the purpose of toothpick, button hook and hair-fastener, but all this is no excuse for having one in your vest pocket when your wife don't know where it comes from.

There are 2,000,000 bee hives in the United States. Every five yields one average of a little over twenty pounds of honey. The average price at which honey is sold is 25 cents per pound. So that, after paying their own board, our bees present us with a revenue of over $8,500,000. Or, in other words, they make a clear gift of one pound of pure honey to every man, woman and child in the vast domain of the United States.

A Michigan journalist declared in his paper that a certain editor had not been quoted; and the editor, in return, declared that the statement was unwarranted; and his author as devoid of truth and a scoundrel to boot. The offending gentleman replied that he never wished it to be understood that all the seven toes were upon one foot, and the victim of the sell was thoroughly laughed at.

The Cattle Disease in Georgia.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

Some weeks ago there were rumors of a new and destructive disease among the cattle in Southwestern Georgia. At first it was supposed that it was merely some slight disorder that would prove only temporary in its nature and local in its limits. Gradually more and more was heard of the disease until now there come reports of its presence in several sections of the State. It is quite prevalent in Wilkes, Washington and neighboring counties. In Morgan county the cows and oxen are said to be suffering and dying from it. It is spreading and growing more malignant. The farmers in that section are justly alarmed at a danger which has not harmed them much yet, but which threatens a terrible destruction of valuable property. The disease is said to be new in its symptoms and effects. Country doctors and veterinary surgeons of better skill have not as yet given it sufficient study to enable them to give a remedy.

Agriculture, has taken the matter in hand, and has written to all the localities where it has appeared to find out as much as possible about this new disease. His correspondents are sending reports and intelligently collected facts, and he hopes soon to give an accurate statement of the extent, damage and nature of the malady which is spreading among the cattle in Georgia.

They want to cure it. A planter in the southern part of the county informs us that he recently received a letter from a Kansas emigrant who wrote that he was very anxious to return home, but was unable to do so. The negro emigrants are told sorts of stories to prevent their return South. This one was informed that some of those who once back were killed, and that one was back a short time ago, but was broken with a club.—[Vicksburg Herald.]

Plain Talk to Southern Dealers.—Under this heading Mercury of Morion, Miss., says:
 Our Southern buyers must be bred to trades instead of professions, be taught to plow the field, to whittle on the streets and swing a hammer in front of a shop. Work is the only open season; the cave where wealth is deposited. Industry and frugality is the greenback of the South, but these will not be seen until false trade disappears and self help takes its place.

AMERICA'S FIFTH INVENTIONS.—An English journal frankly gives credit to the American genius for the least fifteen inventions and discoveries which, it says, have been adopted all over the world. These triumphs of American genius thus enumerated: the electric light; the steam engine; the printing press; fifth navigation by rail; the ball point pen; the cotton gin; the sewing machine; eighth, the India rubber industry; ninth, the machine manufacture of horse shoes; tenth, the said blast for carving; eleventh, the glass harp; twelfth, the chain elevator; thirteenth, artificial ice manufacture; a large scale; fourteenth, the electro magnet and its practical application; fifteenth, the composing machine for printers. It is not often that American achievements in this direction receive due credit from such a source.—[N. Y. Sun.]

Among fifty four persons baptized by the Rev. Henry Williams, Jr., of Petersburg, Va., a few days ago, was a colored man, a colored man who has been a slave since infancy. When Lancaster was raised from the water after immersion, those around him were thunderstruck to hear him cry out: "Thank God! Thank God! These were the words he spoke by him, and probably will be the last, for he was subsequently unable to say anything. This is attested by the Petersburg Index Appeal, a truthful and self-respecting journal.
